

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. 1. The first part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) as $t \rightarrow \infty$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) tend to zero as $t \rightarrow \infty$ if and only if the matrix A is stable.

RULES FOR SPELLING.

THE general rule which I have observed in settling the orthography of certain classes of words, is Uniformity in words of like formation; that is, a rule without an exception; for exceptions give to learners more trouble than rules.

EXAMPLES.

1. Favor, candor, ardor, labor, color, clamor, parlor, error, tenor, honor, splendor, rigor, armor, vigor, vapor, valor, inferior, superior, &c., and the derivatives in the same manner without u, that the pupil need not be troubled with the u in labour, and the omission of it in laborious; u in inferior, and not in inferiority, &c.

2. Music, public, cubic, and all similar words from the Greek and Latin, and some formed in analogy with them, without k. Most of these admit the terminations, al, and ally; as musical, musically; and it is inconvenient to add k to the primitive word, musick, and be obliged to omit it in musical. Besides, the mark used in my books on c, when it has the use of k, supersedes the necessity of k.

Exceptions.—Words which may be used as verbs, retain k, on account of the past tense and participles; as traffick, trafficked; frolick, frolicking.

Words of Teutonic and Gothic origin, having never lost k, and not admitting an additional syllable, retain k; as hemlock, fetlock, wedlock. Monosyllables are also excepted; as sick, lick, lock; most of which may be used as verbs.

3. Defense, expense, offense, pretense, recompense, with s; not solely because the Latin originals have s, but because the derivatives, defensive, expensive, offensive, pretension, recompensing, must be written with s.

4. Blamable, abatable, debatable, movable, ratable, salable, reconcilable, and all similar words without e, except after c and g; as noticeable, changeable.

Befall, miscall, install, recall, forestall, enthrall, retain the ll; for if one l is omitted in the primitive word, it must be restored in the participles, befalling, &c.; and it is a general rule in the language, that a before ll, has its broad sound; (mail and shall excepted.) Hence, if written befall, miscal, the pronunciation may be easily mistaken. For this reason ll should be retained in the nouns installment, enthrallment.

6. Foretell, distill, instill, fulfill, retain ll in the primitive, for it must be retained in the participles and other derivatives; as foretelling, distilling, &c. In this case the pupil has only to learn that the spelling of the original words, tell, still, fill, is retained in all the derivatives.

7. Connection, deflection, inflection, reflection, follow the spelling of the verbs, connect, deflect, infect, reflect. Complex and reflex are considered as the primitives of a different analogy, and the common spelling is retained.

8. All verbs, formed from the Latin and Greek izo, and others formed in analogy with them, are written with the termination ize; as generalize, legalize, moralize. See the Elementary Spelling Book, Sect. 137, 138. This termination and ism, never change the accent of the original word.

Words directly from the French priser, and others from the French, generally retain the letter s; as surprise, enterprise, comprise, devise, revise, merchandise.

9. When verbs of two or more syllables, end in a single unaccented consonant, preceded by a single vowel, the final consonant is not doubled in the derivatives. Thus we should write appareled, canceled, caviling, caviler, duelist, libeled, libelous, equaled, rivaled, traveler, traveling, quarreling, &c. See a list of these verbs in the Elementary Spelling Book, Sect. 149.

This rule, always admitted to be just, has been violated, probably from mere heedlessness; there being no more propriety in doubling the consonant in caviling, libeling, than in limiting, pardoning, delivering.

Dull, skill, will, full, &c. retain ll in all their derivatives, to prevent the inconvenience of exceptions to a rule. I see no reason for omitting one l in dullness, fullness, skillful, willful, which would not require the omission of one s in blissful, distressful.

The orthography of dispatch, instructor, visitor, which Johnson altered without any good reason, not only in opposition to the practice of all that cluster of distinguished authors who adorned the beginning of the last century, but in contradiction of his own practice, in some of his writings, has been restored.

The orthography of a few words, the etymology of which has been mistaken, as furlow, chinist, melasses, mold, cigar, redout, redoutable, controller, and a few others, has been corrected. The usual orthography is palpably erroneous.

In many words which belong to no class, and which are differently written in our books, I have adopted the orthography which is most simple, or most agreeable to the etymology or to the pronunciation.

New Haven, July, 1833.

DIRECTIONS.

THIS mark (') always indicates the accented syllable. When it is placed immediately after a vowel, that vowel has its first or long sound; thus, ha'tred, me'ter, bri'er, ho'ly, hu'man, decry'. This sound is also designated by a horizontal mark over the vowel, thus: fáce, méte, íce, coid, rúde, cry'.

When the mark of accent follows a consonant, the preceding vowel, if single, and not pointed, is short; as in ab'sent, defend', predict', allied'g'e, convuls'e.

When the accent is placed after, or in a syllable that contains a pointed vowel, or a diphthong, that vowel or diphthong has its proper sound; as in debár', remóv'e, adjoin', annoy', avow', abound', rejoice'.

The vowel e, at the end of a word, forms no syllable in any word of English origin; but when it follows a consonant preceded by a single vowel, it indicates that vowel to be long, as in late, mete, note, tune, gyve. When it follows two or more consonants, the vowel of that syllable, if unpointed, is usually short, as in abridge, lodge.

A double accent before ci and ti, indicates that these letters are pronounced like sh, and close the syllable; thus, vi'ci'ous, facti'tious, ini'tial, are pronounced vish'ous, factish'ous, inish'al.

When a word of more syllables than one has a pointed vowel, and no mark of accent, the pointed vowel designates the accented syllable. Some words, mostly compounds, have two syllables with pointed vowels; in which case there is little difference of accent.

When of two vowels together, one only is pointed, that has the sound indicated by the point, and the other is mute; as cource, bráid, hóarse, frúit, allay, flow.

The digraphs ee, ea, ci, ti, when neither vowel is pointed, have the sound of e long—ai and ay, the sound of a long, and oa, that of o long.

Letters in the italic character are silent.

The letters gh are never pronounced, except in a few words which are noted in their place. In all words beginning with wh, the h precedes w in pronunciation, except in a few words which are noted in their place.

H after r is always silent, as in rhetoric.

G and K before n are always silent, as in gnat, know.

I after l has usually a liquid sound, like y in alien, pronounced alyen.

W before r is mute, as in wrest, pronounced rest.

E final in the terminations ble, cle, dle, fle, gle, kle, ple, tle, zle, is silent.

[v]

The combinations ce, ci, ti before a vowel are usually pronounced as sh; as in cetaceous, gracious, ingratiate, pronounced cetashus, grashus, ingrashate. It is said in some English books, that, in many such words, c or t alone has the sound of sh, and therefore ingratiate is to be pronounced ingrashate. This is a great mistake; it is the combination of c or t with the following vowel, that forms the sound of sh; and the measure of English verse, in all the best English poetry, requires this combination to be thus pronounced.

The sound of a before r, is that of ai; as in snare, parent, prepare.

The combination tion usually forms a single syllable, pronounced shon or shun, as in motion, conviction.

The combination sion forms in like manner, a single syllable, pronounced shun, as in confession. But after a vowel, it is usually pronounced zhun, as in fusion, confusion. A few exceptions to these rules are noted in their place; as is the pronunciation of the combinations sier, zier.

Ph have the sound of f, as in philosophy, pronounced filosofy.

P before s is mute, as in psalm, psalter.

C, after s, and before s, i, and y, is usually silent, as in scene, science, Scythian, pronounced sene, sience, Sythian. Before k, c is considered as silent, as in sick, lock.

O*u* and ow, when o is not pointed, are diphthongs, and pronounced uniformly, as in sound, vow.

The diphthongs oi and oy have their proper sound, as in join, joy.

A*u* and aw are digraphs, and have the sound of broad a in fall.

Two accents between n and g, or after g, indicate that ng are pronounced with a close articulation, as in fin'ger, lon'ger.

The pronunciation of the vowel in a derivative word is usually the same as in the primitive. Thus, firm being pronounced ferm, the derivatives are to be pronounced in the same manner; as firmness.

An asterisk or star, after the past tense or participle of a verb indicates that the final letter d may be and usually is blended in pronunciation with the preceding syllable, the vowel s being dropped, and d taking the sound of t. Thus abased, blessed, are pronounced abast, blest. But in derivatives, the letters ed usually form a distinct syllable. Thus, though blessed is pronounced blest, yet blessedness must be pronounced in three syllables; confessed may be in two syllables; but confessedly must be pronounced in four syllables. This rule applies also to adjectives.

Words with this mark † are considered as unsettled in pronunciation.

U is pronounced yu in nature, capture, and some words of similar formation; but, as no two writers or speakers agree in the words to which this pronunciation extends, no rule can be given on the subject.

It has been a received opinion in this country that Walker's Dictionary is the standard of pronunciation in England. This is a mistake; the English follow no book whatever; the only standard of pronunciation is the practice of the higher classes of society. Many of Walker's peculiarities have been condemned by all later writers on orthoepy, Jones, Perry and Jamieson. From observations which the author of this work made during several months residence in England, it appears that, with the exception of a very few words, English well bred people pronounce precisely like educated people in New England.

The orthography of Johnson in such words as publick, logick, &c. has been out of use in England for many years, although still seen in the dictionaries of Walker and other authors. It is rarely or never seen in any other respectable book, or in any paper or periodical. The letter u is retained in ardour, favour, honour, and some other words, at least by most writers; but Valpy, the learned publisher of the Latin Classics, has rejected this letter; and in an elegant edition of Shakespear, now in the press, he spells honor, favor, error, ardor, according to the orthography used in Washington's Letters, in this country, and the orthography of Webster's Spelling Book and Dictionaries.
